German-Jewish Commandos

With the growing importance of Commando raids in the invasion of Europe, now beginning, there is particular interest in a story of Jewish Commandos behind the lines in Libya, told by Mr. M. Shertok, Head of the Political Department of the Jewish Agency, in an article in the latest issue of "Palestine and Middle East."

"It is a tale of youngsters of the youth Aliyah, blue-eyed, fair-haired Jewish boys who could pass muster as Aryans. Because they could pass muster as Aryans and because they had a personal account to settle with Hitler, they volunteered for commandos and were sent out on a dangerous mission.

"While in action behind the enemy lines they were suddenly discovered and surrounded. There was no hope of escape but instead of surrendering they opened fire and went down fighting. They sold their lives as dearly as they could.

"An observer who remained behind and saw what happened managed to come back and told the story."
